- Be constantly striving to 'be the best they can be' – setting their own goals and challenging themselves to 'do better'
- Display excellent attitudes towards their learning – showing curiosity in the world around them and a thirst for knowledge
- Show resilience and a determination to succeed – especially when the work challenges them
- Be able to recall knowledge and apply knowledge and skills to new situations
- Be articulate and talk confidently about a variety of topics demonstrating a wide and varied vocabulary
- Be respectful and tolerant of others – celebrating differences and diversity
- Be emotionally and mentally healthy young adults who are ready to face the challenges ahead
- Make excellent progress from their many different starting points - so that they are prepared, firstly for high school life and then later, the world of work
